

HOW ELSE CAN I HURT MYSELF?

GLAD YOU ASKED! HERE ARE SOME OTHER RACES FOR THOSE EAGER TO BLEED.

The Krispy Kreme Challenge

krispykremechallenge.com
Homer's ultimate challenge! Beginning at the North Carolina State University Memorial Belltower, runners run two miles to a Krispy Kreme, down a dozen doughnuts, and then run back. All in one hour.

Empire State Building Run-Up

nyrr.org
King Kong did it the easy way. Test yourself by running up 86 flights of stairs (1,576 steps, to be exact) to the observation deck and find Meg Ryan waiting for you with a teddy bear (ask your girlfriend what that means).

Baltimore Kinetic Sculpture Race

kineticbaltimore.com
Using anything from tulle mesh fabric to trash-can lids, racers build people-powered contraptions that must travel 15 miles over cobblestones, water, and mud in the Baltimore Inner Harbor area.

The New Orleans Running of the Bulls

nolabulls.com
The San Fermin in Nueva Orleans (SFNO) festival replicates the world-famous Pamplona running of the bulls, except runners are chased by the Crescent City's own roller derby team, armed with plastic bats.

The World Centipede Running Championships

zazzlebaytobreakers.com
Teams of 13 runners are tethered together to form racing "centipedes." A 14th team member "floats" nearby to sub for team-member pit stops. Crapping out is not an option. —Stephen Pitalo
